

BIBTEX

In 5 Minutes

Jon Dehdari

BIBTEX files

```
@book{smith2004,
  title      = {Penguins and Flight: An Epic Failure}, author     = {Bob Smith},
  year       = {2004},
  publisher  = {Prentice Hall},
  address    = {Upper Saddle River, NJ}, isbn       = {0-13-790498-2},
  url        = {http://www.penguins-and-flight.com/penguins.pdf},
}

@article{jones-etal2009, title      = {The Wild Waddlers of {A}ntarctica}, author     = {Suzie Jones and Phil Iceman and Alice Tux},
  year       = {2009},
  journal    = {Journal of Penguin Science},
  volume     = {98},
  number     = {1},
  pages      = {225--274},
  publisher  = {Elsevier},
  url        = {http://citeseerx.ist.psu.edu/viewdoc/download?rep=rep1&type=pdf},
}
```

L^AT_EX files

As Smith (2004) noted, penguins can't fly. But recent research has shown that they waddle very well (Jones et al., 2009).

```
\documentclass[11pt]{article}
\usepackage{natbib}

\begin{document}
As~\citet{smith2004} noted, penguins can't fly.
But recent research has shown that they waddle very well~\citep{jones-etal2009}.

\bibliographystyle{apalike}
\bibliography{mybib} % Our BibTeX file is called mybib.bib
\end{document}
```

Read the following:

- <http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/BibTeX>
- <http://merkel.zoneo.net/Latex/natbib.php>

References

Jones, S., Iceman, P., and Tux, A. (2009). The wild waddlers of Antarctica. Journal of Penguin Science, 98(1):225–274.

Smith, B. (2004). Penguins and Flight: An Epic Failure. Prentice Hall, Upper Saddle River, NJ.